

Analysis of health services coverage using insurance claims

- I have been studying healthcare, long-term care expenditures and actual cases of health services coverage using big data from national health and long-term care insurance claims.
- I have focused on analyzing the expenditures and cases of centenarians.

Healthcare administration

- I have been researching hospital administration and healthcare finance, conducting the analysis for topics such as profit and loss related to drugs, labor costs of healthcare personnel, operation and management of operating theaters, and nosocomial infection control projects from the perspective of hospital management.

These studies aim to obtain research outcomes that contribute to the practical application of public health policy. This is achieved through efforts to understand actual cases of health services coverage and healthcare institutions.
