

Management system for promoting community health activities in disaster countermeasure Operation manual Practical application research

Hiroko Okuda, Misakao Miyazaki (Graduate School of Nursing at Chiba University)

In this study, in the disaster countermeasures, we pursued the administrative ability required for the supervising public health nurse from the viewpoint of information management and utilization and leadership, and developed the management manual of the general public health nurse's disaster management system and the training program

