

Assessment for maternal and child health policy in Japan

Ritei Uehara, Department of Health Policy and Technology Assessment

Healthy Parents and Children 21, and information utilization

- Collection or proposal for scientific knowledge on achieving goals and new challenges for Healthy Parents and Children 21
- Build a highly versatile and popularized model for implementation of effective maternal and child health services

Assessment for indicators based on The Basic Law for Child and Maternal Health and Child Development

- Creating indicators related to The Basic Law for Child and Maternal Health and Child Development
- Construction of a real-time monitoring system to grasp indicators or implementation

Comprehensive support centers for families with children and role of prefectures or public health centers

- Investigation to obtain basic data on installation of comprehensive support centers for families with children and effective support by prefectures or public health

Seamless and biopsychosocial support for child growth and development

- Regional difference of indicators on health services between school age or adolescence and adult